

Registered Midwife Graduate Program

FAQs

How many intakes do you offer and when do they commence?

Epworth Freemasons: February, March

How many positions are there?

12

Are they full-time or part-time positions?

The positions are part time, four days per week, working a variety of shifts across all days.

How many supernumerary days are there?

Seven days in birth suite; four days in postnatal; two days in SCN.

How many clinical rotations are there?

Three

What rotations are on offer?

Birth suite, postnatal and special care nursery

What is the interview format?

Individual interviews

How do I apply?

This is a two-step process. Firstly you will need to register through computer match. You will be required to submit your application electronically via epworthcareers.org.au. Please ensure you follow the specific instructions that will be included in the advertisement for the site at which you are applying. Incomplete applications will not be considered.

Do I have to have undertaken a placement at Epworth to apply?

No. We welcome applications from students who have not undertaken a placement with us.

What employment opportunities are there after the graduate year?

We pride ourselves on our retention rates on completion of the program. Across the organisation our retention rate is over 90%. Those who choose to leave often do so to pursue specialties we do not offer, to travel or to return to the country.

We offer a range of professional development opportunities in speciality area programs such as peri op upon completion of your graduate year as well as Introduction to Specialty Practice (ISP) and Emerging Leaders Program.

Do you accept international applicants or applications outside ComputerMatch?

During the initial phase of recruitment you must be eligible to participate in the computer match process (unless applying for the post-graduate stream). If there are any unfilled positions following the match results, then non-match applications may be considered.

Registered Midwife Graduate Program

FAQs

What documents are required for my application and does each page need to be certified?

You will be required to electronically submit your cover letter and CV.

You will then be required to post in a complete set of application documents, including the following to the EN graduate coordinator of the division you are applying for:

- cover letter
- CV
- Passport-sized photo (with your name on the back)
- Certified copy of your latest academic transcript with key legend
- Certified copy of your clinical assessment report

Can I receive feedback on my application at any time?

Feedback regarding applications will only be provided if requested after the ComputerMatch results (for the postgraduate stream, feedback will be available after interviews are completed).